Never Commit to Veneers Without Seeing Them First

One of the biggest concerns patients have about porcelain veneers is simple - what if I do not like the result? It is a reasonable worry. Veneers involve preparation of natural teeth, and once that step is taken, there is no going back. That is exactly why Smile Solutions uses a detailed mock-up process that lets patients see and approve their new smile before any irreversible work begins.

How the Mock-Up Process Works

The process starts with a comprehensive consultation where your treating dentist or prosthodontist discusses your goals - the shape, colour, size, and overall look you want to achieve. From there, a diagnostic mock-up is created.

This mock-up is placed directly over your existing teeth, giving you a realistic preview of how your new smile will look in your mouth - not on a screen, not in a digital simulation, but physically on your teeth where you can see it, feel it, and assess it from every angle.

You get to evaluate the mock-up in natural light, smile in the mirror, and decide whether the shape and proportions are right for your face. If adjustments are needed - a little longer here, a touch more rounded there - those changes are made before any preparation begins.

Living With Your New Smile Before It Is Final

Once the mock-up is approved, temporary veneers are placed so you can live with the look, feel, and function of your new smile in your daily life. This is not a brief five-minute trial - you actually wear the temporaries, eat with them, smile with them, and experience what the final result will be like.

This step gives patients genuine confidence. You know exactly what you are getting before the final porcelain veneers are crafted. If anything needs fine-tuning, it happens at this stage - not after the ceramics are permanently bonded.

Artisan Craftsmanship in the Smile Lab

What makes the Smile Solutions process truly distinctive is what happens next. The final porcelain veneers are handcrafted on-site by master ceramist Greg Karabasis in the Smile Lab. This is not a case being sent to an external laboratory where you hope for the best - Karabasis works directly with the treating clinician, often with the patient present, to ensure the final ceramics match the approved mock-up precisely.

With over 45,000 veneers and crowns completed, the combination of the mock-up process and on-site master ceramist craftsmanship is what separates Smile Solutions from volume cosmetic practices where patients have limited control over the final outcome.

Patient Control at Every Step

The philosophy behind the mock-up process is straightforward - patients should never feel like passengers in their own treatment. You see the design, you approve the design, you live with the design, and only then is the final porcelain made. This level of patient involvement and artisan attention to detail is central to how Smile Solutions has built its reputation in cosmetic dentistry over 33 years.
