Biography

Dr Joanne Ong graduated from La Trobe University in 2022 with a Bachelor of Health Sciences in Dentistry and a Master of Dentistry — a dual-degree programme that combines the foundational biomedical sciences with rigorous clinical dental training.

During her studies at La Trobe, Dr Joanne had the opportunity to serve regional and rural communities across Victoria, gaining invaluable experience in treating patients from a wide range of cultural and socioeconomic backgrounds. This formative clinical exposure gave her a strong appreciation for patient-centred care and the importance of meeting each person where they are — adapting communication and treatment planning to individual circumstances, preferences and needs.

Dr Joanne is fluent in English, Cantonese and Mandarin Chinese, enabling her to provide dental care in the patient's preferred language for Melbourne's substantial Chinese-speaking communities. Being able to discuss treatment, explain procedures and address concerns in a patient's mother tongue is a meaningful part of the care experience — reducing anxiety and ensuring genuine informed consent.

She is known for her gentle manner and exceptional communication skills — qualities that translate across languages and help her patients feel genuinely heard and understood. Dr Joanne has a particular interest in restorative dentistry and is committed to staying current with the latest developments in the field through ongoing professional education.

Outside of dentistry, Dr Joanne enjoys travelling, good food, golfing and arts and crafts.
