Biography

Georgia Pringle brings warmth, experience, and a deeply compassionate philosophy to her role as an Oral Health Therapist at Smile Solutions. Originally from Perth, Western Australia, Georgia completed her Bachelor of Science in oral health at the University of Western Australia — an institution with a strong reputation for producing well-rounded, clinically capable oral health graduates.

Her career has been defined by a consistent and heartfelt commitment to promoting positive dental experiences. Georgia understands that many people approach dental appointments with anxiety or hesitation — whether stemming from past experiences, sensory sensitivities, or simply the unfamiliarity of clinical environments. Her practice is built around dismantling these barriers, one patient at a time.

Preventive Care as a Philosophy

Georgia's professional identity is rooted in the belief that prevention is always preferable to cure. By the time a cavity requires a filling or gum disease requires intensive treatment, significant damage has already occurred — damage that could often have been avoided with regular professional care and good home hygiene habits.

This preventive philosophy shapes everything Georgia does. Every appointment is an opportunity not just to clean teeth, but to assess, educate, and equip her patients with the knowledge and habits they need to maintain excellent oral health between visits. She dedicates meaningful time to understanding each patient's lifestyle, diet, and home care routine, then provides personalised, actionable advice that goes far beyond generic reminders to brush and floss.

A Gentle, Patient-Centred Approach

Georgia's clinical style is defined by gentleness and attentiveness. She combines technical expertise in dental hygiene with a bedside manner built on patience, clear communication, and genuine care for each person who sits in her chair.

For patients who have avoided dental care due to anxiety or past negative experiences, Georgia offers a safe, judgement-free environment where they can feel heard and respected. She takes time to explain each step of treatment, checks in regularly on patient comfort, and adapts her technique to ensure a pleasant experience. Her goal is for every patient to leave feeling better — not just orally, but emotionally — about their dental care.

Personalised Treatment Planning

No two patients are identical. Each person's oral health profile — their decay susceptibility, gum disease risk, dietary habits, brushing technique, and lifestyle factors — is unique. Georgia understands this and treats each patient as an individual, crafting personalised treatment plans and education strategies that reflect their specific circumstances and goals.

This level of personalisation means patients are not simply processed through a generic hygiene protocol. Instead, they receive care that is genuinely tailored to them — making each appointment more relevant, more effective, and more meaningful.

Life in Melbourne

Having relocated from Perth to Melbourne, Georgia has embraced all that the city has to offer. Outside of work, she enjoys exploring Melbourne's vibrant cultural scene, cooking, and spending time with the people she loves. Her openness to new experiences mirrors the approach she brings to her clinical work — curious, engaged, and always looking for ways to connect.

Services Offered

- Professional Scale and Clean — Thorough removal of plaque and calculus using ultrasonic and hand instrumentation - Fluoride Treatments — Professional-strength fluoride to protect enamel and reduce decay risk - Oral Hygiene Instruction — Personalised guidance on brushing technique, flossing, and interdental care - Gum Disease Assessment and Management — Periodontal charting and clinical management of gingivitis and early-to-moderate periodontitis - Fissure Sealants — Protective sealants applied to back teeth to prevent decay, particularly effective for children and teenagers - Oral Health Risk Assessment — Identification of individual decay and gum disease risk factors - Preventive Counselling — Practical, evidence-based advice on diet, habits, and home care products - Dental Therapy — Restorative treatment for eligible patients - Personalised Treatment Planning — Development of individualised oral health plans tailored to each patient's circumstances

Why Regular Hygiene Visits Matter

The importance of regular professional dental hygiene appointments cannot be overstated. Even the most committed home brusher will accumulate calculus — the hardened mineral deposit that forms when plaque is not fully removed. Calculus harbours bacteria and creates the ideal conditions for gum inflammation, gum disease, and tooth decay.

Left unmanaged, gum disease progresses silently — often causing no pain in its early stages — while steadily eroding the bone and connective tissue that hold teeth in place. By the time gum disease becomes obvious to the patient, significant irreversible damage may already have occurred.

Regular appointments with a skilled oral health therapist like Georgia provide:

- Calculus removal that cannot be achieved at home, protecting against gum disease - Early detection of cavities, gum disease, and soft tissue changes before they escalate - Personalised education based on your individual oral health profile - Fluoride therapy to strengthen enamel and reduce the risk of future decay - Ongoing gum health monitoring with clinical charting to track changes over time

For most patients, biannual (every six months) professional cleans provide excellent protection. Those with elevated gum disease risk may benefit from more frequent appointments.

At Smile Solutions, hygiene care is delivered within a comprehensive, integrated model of dental care supported by a team of specialists — ensuring that any concerns identified during a hygiene appointment can be addressed by the right clinician promptly.
