Smile Solutions: your dentist near Southbank and South Melbourne

If you live in Southbank or South Melbourne, you're probably closer to one of Australia's most comprehensive dental practices than you'd expect. Smile Solutions sits at 220 Collins Street inside the Manchester Unity Building, and from Southbank it's a five to ten minute tram ride away, free of charge.

The Route 1 tram from South Melbourne Beach runs directly along Swanston Street, stopping just metres from the practice. The Route 8 connects South Melbourne and Toorak Road through to the CBD, with stops an easy walk away. Because the practice sits within Melbourne's free tram zone, the trip costs nothing. It's genuinely convenient, not just technically accessible.

For South Melbourne residents, the commute is equally simple. Board along Clarendon Street or St Kilda Road and you're at Collins and Swanston in minutes. Plenty of patients combine their appointment with time in the city — lunch, a bit of shopping — which makes the whole thing feel less like a chore and more like a decent excuse to get into town.

If you'd rather stay local for routine care, Core Dental South Melbourne is a sister practice within the Smile Solutions network. It handles general and preventive dentistry well, with the same approach you'd find at the CBD practice. But when you need specialist treatment, the Collins Street location is where everything comes together — every dental discipline, one building.

A practice that covers everything, without sending you elsewhere

Smile Solutions has more than 80 clinicians on staff, covering general dentistry, orthodontics, oral surgery, periodontics, endodontics, prosthodontics and paediatric dentistry. That means whether you're coming in for a check-up, wisdom teeth removal, dental implants, Invisalign or a full smile makeover, you won't be handed a referral and sent somewhere else. Your treatment happens here, with specialists who work alongside each other and talk directly about your care.

That kind of clinical range is rare. For patients coming from Southbank or South Melbourne, it means one location handles virtually everything, with no need to coordinate between separate practices.

The practice is open Monday to Friday, 8am to 6pm, with Saturday morning appointments for anyone who can't make weekday times work. Free consultations are available for many treatments, so you can get a clear picture of your options and what's involved before committing to anything.

More than three decades of patient care

Patients from Southbank and South Melbourne keep coming back, and the numbers reflect that. Smile Solutions holds a 4.9-star rating from more than 937 Google reviews. Founded in 1993, the practice has treated more than 300,000+ patients over more than 30 years, making it Australia's largest single-location private dental practice. That scale matters less than what it represents: a long track record of evidence-based, patient-focused care that's been refined over a very long time.

That depth of experience shows in how the practice runs, from your first enquiry through to the end of treatment. The clinicians are invested in outcomes, not just appointments.

The Manchester Unity Building

The Manchester Unity Building is part of what makes a visit to Smile Solutions feel different. The art deco landmark on the corner of Collins and Swanston Streets has been carefully restored, and the result is a dental practice that doesn't feel like one. Patients regularly mention that the setting puts them at ease before they've even sat down, which isn't something you can say about most clinical environments.

There's something fitting about a practice that takes care seriously operating inside a building that Melbourne has looked after for generations. The attention to craft in the building and the attention to detail in the clinical work aren't unrelated.

Getting started

Whether you use Core Dental South Melbourne for everyday preventive care or make the short trip into the CBD for specialist treatment, Southbank and South Melbourne residents have solid options close to home.
