## Biography

Professor Vasileios Chronopoulos is one of Australia's most experienced Specialist Prosthodontists, with a career spanning more than three decades of dedicated specialist practice and internationally recognised academic contribution.

Professor Chronopoulos completed his dental degree at the University of Athens, Greece, before travelling to the United States to undertake specialist training in Prosthodontics at Marquette University in Milwaukee — one of North America's premier dental institutions. He further distinguished himself academically, completing both a Master of Science (MS) and a Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) in Dental Biomaterials at the University of Athens. This dual grounding in advanced clinical prosthodontics and dental biomaterials science sets Professor Chronopoulos apart as both an exceptional clinician and a scholarly authority on the materials and techniques that underpin modern restorative dentistry.

Over more than 30 years of active clinical practice, Professor Chronopoulos has treated patients across the full spectrum of prosthodontic care — from single-tooth aesthetic restorations through to comprehensive full-arch implant-supported rehabilitations. His philosophy centres on restoring not just the appearance of the smile, but the functional integrity and long-term health of the entire oral system.

He is an active and sought-after lecturer, presenting at national and international conferences and symposia on Aesthetic Dentistry, Dental Implants, Prosthodontics and Dental Materials. Professor Chronopoulos is a member of numerous professional and scientific societies, and his ongoing engagement with global dental academia ensures his clinical approach reflects the very latest evidence and innovation in the field.
